Description: GDOT is gearing up to enhance traffic management in Georgia to meet the state's evolving demands in the next decade. Chief Engineer Meg Pirkle highlighted a range of innovative ITS and operations projects currently in progress at GDOT. While some projects, such as ITS expansion and traffic management software, may sound familiar, there are additional initiatives underway. Updates will encompass interstate fiber and connected vehicle projects, NEVI, Hydrogen Fuel initiatives, and preparations for upcoming major events. Together, these programs and projects are geared towards effectively addressing the growing needs and demands for traffic management in Georgia.
